

Edgewood Veterinary Tips

by Dr. Kristy McCamy

Flea Allergies In Cats & Dogs

Fleas are a troublesome pest. They bite, are hard to get rid of and can terrorize an entire household before being controlled. For some animals, they pose an even bigger problem. Animals that are allergic to fleas will have a severe itching reaction. They will lick, scratch and bite until their hair is gone and their skin is covered in sores and scabs. The surest way to help an animal get better is to see your vet and discuss the best way to get rid of the infestation in your pet.

Fleas can affect any home. Simple home care treatments should produce results. Should your animal continue to have problems, a visit to us may be warranted. We are experienced animal care experts, and can be entrusted with the complete care of your pet. We are at 1055 Grass Valley Hwy. Please call us at 530-885-1919 and consider joining our family.

P.S. The number one allergy in dogs & cats is the saliva from the fleas.

1055 Grass Valley Hwy.
Auburn
530-885-1919